The real estate growth problem

Illustrative scenario used to demonstrate the delivery approach; not a claim about a named client.

01	Enquiries arrive from multiple channels	Website forms, paid campaigns and social messages are not managed in one place.
02	Sales response is inconsistent	Leads are missed, contacted late or followed up without a clear schedule.
03	Marketing performance is unclear	The team cannot easily connect ad spend to qualified leads, viewings or deals.
04	No repeatable nurture process	Prospects who are not ready today are not systematically re-engaged.

The growth system I designed

One connected journey from first click to sales follow-up.

Operating principle: every enquiry gets a source, an owner, a next action and a measurable outcome.

Campaign setup & optimisation

Build campaigns around property intent and track the quality of the leads—not clicks alone.

CAMPAIGN STRUCTURE

- Separate buyer, seller and rental intent
- Segment by location and property type
- Use focused ad groups and relevant creative
- Align ads with dedicated landing pages

CONVERSION TRACKING

- GA4 events for form submissions
- Google Ads conversion actions
- UTM naming for source attribution
- Test forms, thank-you pages and events

OPTIMISATION LOOP

- Review search terms and placements
- Pause waste; refine targeting
- Test copy, offers and landing pages
- Prioritise cost per qualified enquiry

HubSpot CRM configured for property enquiries

I organise every property enquiry into a trackable sales journey—from first contact to final outcome.

New enquiry	→	Capture source, campaign, property interest and contact details.
Attempted contact	→	Create a follow-up task and log the outreach attempt.
Connected	→	Record contact outcome and preferred communication channel.
Qualified	→	Apply qualification criteria: budget, area, timeline and intent.
Viewing booked	→	Track viewing date, property and attendance outcome.
Offer / negotiation	→	Log offer status, objections and next action.
Won / lost	→	Record outcome and reason to inform future marketing.

Follow-up workflows that reduce lead leakage

I automate the next best follow-up action so each enquiry is acknowledged, assigned and nurtured consistently.
